ExhibitView Challenges Conventional Beliefs with New Release of Litigation Software

New Patent-Pending Technology Makes Media-Rich Litigation Accessible to Lawyers

Rome, Georgia, April 21, 2009 – ExhibitView Solutions, LLC officially launched ExhibitView™ 2.0 at the Georgia Trial Lawyers Association (GTLA) annual convention April 16-17, 2009.

Before ExhibitView, lawyers had to pay for high-priced litigation support if their courtroom defense included powerful, electronic evidence such as pictures, audio recordings, video depositions, or web-based material. Lawyers who have since switched to ExhibitView call this patent-pending software the product they've been waiting for:

- M. Brandon Smith of Childers & Schlueter, LLP says, “[ExhibitView] saved me valuable time and money when compared to other lacking programs currently on the market. I will not hesitate to use ExhibitView on future projects and cases as I think it is a great new asset for anyone that routinely gives presentations, seminars, or similar events.”
- Derric Crowther, Esq., adjunct professor at the John Marshal Law School in Atlanta, Georgia says, “As a law professor, I certainly would not have held one [trial presentation software] product over another – that is until I saw ExhibitView. The simplicity of your product makes it an ease for computer users of all levels.”
- Michael Prieto of Perrotta, Cahn and Prieto, P.C. attributes a recent mediation settlement success to ExhibitView, “ExhibitView met all of my requirements and exceeded my expectations for an intuitive and powerful presentation tool. I will not hesitate letting my fellow trial lawyers know about your exciting new product.”

Attendees at the GTLA convention enthusiastically embraced ExhibitView 2.0's simple, 14-button interface, calling out ExhibitView's 3D object, drag and drop, and unlimited, independent slide exhibit capabilities as key benefits to owning this product.

Priced at $699, ExhibitView 2.0 for Microsoft Windows and Vista is available for purchase on the ExhibitView website: www.exhibitview.net.
