New ExhibitView 3.0 Trial Presentation Software Release Penetrates U.K. Market

In a world where barristers continue the centuries-old tradition of wearing wigs and gowns, ExhibitView trial presentation software is welcomed as a practical way to reduce costs and eliminate courtroom delays.

Rome, Georgia, June 22, 2010 – ExhibitView Solutions, LLC, provider of trial presentation and case management software for legal professionals, is attracting international interest with the release of ExhibitView 3.0. With advanced features such as synchronized video depositions, patent-pending automatic projector configuration, and Microsoft Office and Windows 7 support, ExhibitView 3.0 is winning over U.K. lawyers because it is easy to learn and use.

“About 95 percent of the courts in the U.K. still use paper,” says Hassnet Ltd. Jacintha Hodgson. “We don’t have court presentation experts, and lawyers have been scared off by trial presentation softwares that are complicated to use.”

The U.K.’s love for paper is waning, though, as redaction errors delay trials and forensic accountants double their charges when working with paper. “People want to move away from paper-based evidence, but they need the right tools. In my opinion, ExhibitView is the only trial presentation software that is simple to use and has the features U.K. lawyers need,” says Hodgson.

Release 3.0 is growing the ExhibitView family in the U.S., too. “Clients from as far away as Hawaii, Washington, and Florida have been sharing stories with me about how ExhibitView 3.0 is changing their practice,” says ExhibitView customer relations vice president Bill Roach. “Here in Atlanta, the staff of Childers, Schlueter & Smith use ExhibitView in the office to manage evidence collected during e-discovery. And they recently used ExhibitView in court to win a $95,000 judgment and save $4,500 in court costs.”

ExhibitView 3.0 runs on the Microsoft 7, Vista, and XP platforms and supports 17 forms of electronic evidence, including Microsoft Office documents, web documents, PDF files, audio, and video. The company also offers a fully functional two-week trial, online tutorials, and live, interactive training sessions – all free of charge.
